Here's How it Works

THE PROGRAM

The Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) has a new initiative to help contractors recruit capable workers for roadway construction jobs. This includes hiring workers who qualify for the On-the-Job Training programs.

This Construction Careers Program connects contractors and workers to help increase minority and female workers on federal and state funded road building contracts. The program also provides opportunities to unemployed adults including veterans and high school graduates to secure jobs with our industry's leading contractors.

CONTRACTORS

- Register as a preferred contractor
- Identify projects that have a need for workers
- Identify project On-the-Job Training requirements and goals

Partnering with Contractors through the Construction Careers Program

Florida Department of Transportation

Construction Careers

JUST THE FACTS

OnBoard4Jobs Construction Careers is a Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) initiative to help contractors recruit capable workers for roadway construction jobs. This includes hiring workers who qualify for On-the-Job Training (OJT) programs.

The program focus is to recruit a viable construction workforce and increase the number of minorities, females and veterans on federal and state-funded roadway construction contracts. The program provides opportunities to unemployed adults, as well as graduating high school seniors, to secure jobs with industry leading contractors.

Is the program statewide?

Yes, all prime and sub-contractors working on FDOT projects throughout the state are eligible to participate in this program.

What is the overall program goal?

- Recruit experienced and entry level workers to the roadway construction industry
- Contact or enroll more than 100 people for On-the-Job Training positions
- Provide job opportunities for unemployed minority and female adults
- Increase job opportunities for veterans
- Provide job opportunities to graduating high school seniors

Is this program free to the contractor and job seekers?

Yes, this program is free to contractors and job candidates.

How are job candidates recruited?

Candidates are primarily recruited through job fairs, career resource centers, internet, schools, local non-profit agencies and Construction Career Days events.

How does the program work?

Contractors contact the OnBoard4Jobs Construction Careers Program at OnBoard4Jobs@QCAusa.com or call 1-866-662-6273 ext. 3. A member from the team will contact you to discuss your hiring needs such as general types of work, locations and if you have OJT requirements to fulfill. The project team will search the database of qualified candidates and will send you resumes for consideration. You may contact the candidate directly for additional information or to interview. All we ask is you let us know if you interview and/or hire a candidate we provide; this is tracked for FDOT reporting.

Who is facilitating the program?

The Florida Department of Transportation selected Quest Corporation of America (QCA) to establish, coordinate and facilitate the OnBoard4Jobs Construction Careers Program. QCA was selected because of their extensive experience with public involvement, administrative documentation and strong local presence throughout the state. Utilizing these skills, QCA educates and recruits qualified candidates for employment in the construction industry for leading contractors.
